INTERACTION

Remington R91 Travel Shaver

Who?
Any adult male, at an affordable £15 it is a handy purchase for travel hygiene.

What?
A lightweight and compact rechargeable travel shaver, ideal for touch ups or holidays the R91 shaves off light growth without water or foam leaving a smooth finish whilst on the move.

Where? When?
Anytime, anyplace. At home, at the office, in the car, on holiday, on the move, this shaver is quick, clean and simple for any occasion.

Why?
The Remington R91 is lightweight, easily packable and provides a hassle free clean shave on the go whether it is in everyday use, for the office or on holiday. Just charge up and your ready to go. Its ergonomic shape and size makes it perfect for most travel environments while the dual track steel blades provide 40% more cutting surface for a smooth and clean shave.

Product Experience

The shaver has a sleek aesthetic and presents itself well as a masculine product. The design is in keeping with the Remington range displaying its identity through this and its use of the professional logo and brand name. The product has a quality feel to it with a high build and aesthetic quality relative to the low price.

The shave achieved is satisfactory for a travel shaver; it struggles with consistency on the neck and jaw line and has a tendency to be rough on occasion.

The product could be improved by making it washable considering its working environment and the addition of a rubber grip would enhance user interaction. The mains charging feature is a personal preference but I can see advantages on location for being powered by 2xAA batteries like competitive products. The R91 gives only 30 minutes work for 16 hours charge, a disappointing ratio.

Overall the product is lightweight and portable, more suited for touch ups and travel than everyday use. It is an intuitive product, easy to use and clean with a neat design. I enjoy the shavers sleek lines, black and silver look, and its ergonomic size fitting ideally in hand.
